BULLDOG SAVES CHICKENS.

On Sunday night chicken thieves paid a visit to the chicken roost of Mr. P. P. Walker, on West Third street, but were frightened away before lifting any of the toothsome fowls from their perch by a two-months-old bulldog belonging to Miss Annabelle Lewis resides with her in the Flarity Flats, next to Mr. Parker, and has a pet bulldog named "Binks." "Binks" was given her two weeks Sunday night as is her custom. She placed the dog on the back porch to sleep. During the night they were awakened by his continued barking and growling and arose to see what caused the disturbances, and making a light in their apartments they heard quick footsteps leaving Mr. Parker's backyard. After this the dog was quiet and P. P.'s chickens were saved by the bulldog.

ATTENTION REGULARS.

The manager of the Regulars announces that there will be practice this afternoon from 5 to 5:30, and requests that every one be prompt, as with a little hard work the Regulars can down the Ludlow White Sox when they meet on Sunday. This team defeated the Regulars two weeks ago by the small score of 3 to 0, and the many fans who saw that game pronounced it one of the best ever played on the local diamond.

With the experience the Regulars have acquired since then, the game on Sunday should be even better, and besides the locals have added several players who materially strengthen their lineup, and add to their chances of victory on Sunday.

Manager Dresel has not decided who will pitch on Sunday, but will make the announcement during the week.

Miss Harriet Johnson, after a visit to her old home, returned to New York City last Saturday. She was the guest of honor at several social functions, where she was the recipient of marked attention. Miss Harriet is a gifted woman, particularly in conversation and music. She is as graceful as a princess and by her cordial sweetness ever widens her social sphere and extends her circle of friends.

POLICE COURT

The Police Court had a busy day Monday. Six cases were called before Judge Whitaker, who disposed of four of them.

The case of L. C. Harding, charged with cutting with intent to kill, was continued because the chief witness, Frank Brown, was unable to appear, being confined in the hospital, suffering from the wounds said to have been inflicted by the accused. The trial was set for Saturday, May 29.

James T. Carroll, held on the charge of cutting with intent to kill, was continued until Frank Brown, the man assaulted, could be present to testify. The date of trial was set for Saturday, May 29.

Spencer Kimbrough, the colored man who did the rescue stunt in the smashup of the Winder auto, and put too much speed into the act, was let off with a fine of $8.90 and told to go and speed no more.

Charles Pinkhard, who is suffering with the "jimmies" at the county jail, pleaded guilty through his representative and was given a fine of $6.50.

The case of Lee Price, charged with shooting with intent to kill, was heard and after some of the evidence was given the officials changed the charge to carrying deadly concealed weapons. The following witnesses were heard: A negro named Johnson, and his wife, John Lightfoot and his wife and Officer Stewart. From the evidence it appeared that Price had been thinking seriously of shooting Johnson for some time and told him Saturday night that he would get him soon. Sunday he drew a gun on Johnson's wife and started to shoot her. After considering the evidence, Judge Whitaker held Price over to the September term of the Mason Circuit Court and fixed his bond at $100.

The case that occupied the court's attention the greater part of the afternoon was the case of Joseph Mitchell, charged with cutting with intent to kill. The defendant was represented by Hon. F. P. O'Donnell and City Attorney John Calhoun, assisted by Hon. Wadsworth Cole represented the city.

The following witnesses testified: Harry Cobb, Joseph Mitchell, George Mitchell, Earl Trumbo, Clyde Ham, Alex Gill, Andy Thomas, Morris McDonald, John McDonald and Joe Carpenter. All of the witnesses agreed as to the principal facts in the case, and after hearing counsel, the Judge decided to hold Mitchell over to the grand jury and fixed his bond at $150.

They're Off By Their Loneliness To Danville In Full Regalia.

The old time guard, composing the famous "5-15-22" of the Maysville Commandery No. 10, Knights Templar, who stormed the city of Cleveland, O., years ago, have about become an extinct species, with the exception of one or two of the trio. However, the memory of that great and august event still lives and this morning the "5-15-22" was repeated, with a slight variation, in that the "15" will make their appearance at the end of the journey, when "5" calls on them and "22" is ready for demolishing.

The "5" who left to attend the annual convocation of the Knights Templar this morning from Maysville were:

Sir Knight S. P. Browning, Sir Knight A. G. Sulser, Sir Knight J. A. Dodson, Sir Knight C. P. Rasp, Sir Knight J. D. Keith.

They went overland in an automobile, and compose the "5" Knights. "15" members are in the band they have engaged to escort them to their headquarters upon their arrival at Danville; "22" is the number of gallons of whisky they expect to dispense in this "dry" territory to the thirsty Sir Knights that pay them their respects, provided there is any of the "22" left. Here's luck to them. May they fill the shoes of the original "5-15-22" to a Knight's taste.

SOCIETY NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Roff, of Mayslick, entertained the class of 1915 of the Mayslick High School at their beautiful home at that place. Cards and dancing occupied the evening, with a delightful supper at the close. Those present were the class of 1915, as follows: Misses Mae Manion, Isabella Darnell, Mildred McConnell, Mae Roff, Messrs. Leslie Arthur, James Roff, Walter Manion, Russell Caldwell, Prof. E. L. Dix and others, who spent a most enjoyable evening and departed declaring Mr. and Mrs. Roff most gracious hosts.

Mr. Douglas Newell entertained Monday evening with a fish fry on his palatial houseboat, the Bucaneer. The boat was decorated especially for the occasion and was a very pretty sight. A large crowd of the younger folks attended and the affair was a success in every particular.

THE STEEL INDUSTRY.

May well congratulate herself that she has secured a reciprocity agreement proposed by this some ten or twelve years ago, for she has a great deal more from the Democrats, taking any return whatever, than was provided by the proposed agreement, and because increased duties on American products.

Democrats put steel rails on the free list, and retained her duty on rails, gives a rate in rates to Great Britain, and Canadian now taking many contracts for rails away from mills of this country. Several of our railroads have recently placed orders with an mills for 52,000 tons of open hearth steel which they can buy in Canada $5 per ton cheaper than they can in this country, because the Canadian mills pay less for labor, have other peculiar advantages, and are protected at home.

With these orders going to Canada our own mills are suffering in proportion and thousands of men are thrown out of employment because the Democratic tariff has forced the business across the border. The United States Steel Corporation alone employed on an average of 49,353 men less in 1914 than it did in 1913, and its gross income declined $238,749,366, which, after taking care of the usual demands made upon it, left this corporation with a deficit of $16,971,983 as against a surplus of $15,500,000 the previous year. Over two hundred million dollars which the present tariff law has squeezed out of circulation in this country and presented to our competitors across the northern border.

This represents but one concern of but one industry, but the same figures will proportionately apply to every industry the product of which has been affected by the Underwood tariff law, and if we were to have free trade, as a constant application of the Democratic policy of revision downward will inevitably lead to, this same condition would apply to every industry in this country without exception.

These conditions not only make it impossible to raise the wage scale, but make it a problem to maintain wages and keep the great army of wage earners employed at all, and at the same time and from the same cause, the cost, not only of living, but of barely existing, and is steadily increasing until it has now reached an abnormally high level barely within the reach of those who have retained their positions, and beyond the hope of those whom the Democratic tariff have deprived of employment.

While these conditions make the present rather gloomy, the future presents quite a different appearance, for history has a habit of repeating itself, and it will be remembered that in 1896, as soon as it became known that the Republicans would be in control, business began to improve, and as it was in 1896 so it will be in 1916.

One of the hardest things for a man to do is to look unconcerned the first time he wears a silk hat, and the most difficult thing for a woman is not to look so when she wears a particularly swaggy headpiece.

It is hoped that none of our Sunday school excursion steamers will cross the ocean and attack the submarines and thereby bring on war.

The man who works hard to raise a mortgage is not the kind of a fellow who spends his time in raising the other fellow's ante.

For a while it looked as if Japan were getting ready to add a few pieces of china to her collection of bric a brac.

The Voice of Experience.

Nat C. Goodwin, the famous actor, was lunching on a balmy December afternoon in a garden under a trellis of pink roses in Los Angeles.

"I am to be married next week," said a young moving picture actor, with an uneasy laugh. "She's a dear girl, but I've been told that December is an unlucky month to marry in."

"My boy," said Mr. Goodwin, "I have tried nearly all the months, and December is no worse than any of the others."

Joseph and Isaac went to hear Billy Sunday preach, and after the service, as they were going home, Joseph said:

"Vell, Isaac, vat you tink of him?"

"I didn't like him," said Isaac. "Too much hell. It was hell, hell, hell all the time. And I don't believe there is any hell, Joseph."

"No hell?" asked Joseph, in amazement.

"No," answered his friend.

"Vell, then, Isaac," said Joseph, "if there is no hell, where is bizness gone?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING IS THE ROAD TO ECONOMY.

English Ginger Cakes.

We are quite accustomed to speaking of "old-fashioned ginger bread," and this is right, for ginger is the most ancient flavoring.

For years and years cakes were baked without any special character, it being thought quite enough that they were sweet and of finer texture than the coarse bread of those early days. However, spices were esteemed from the beginning of civilization when they were brewed into refreshing drinks and served with many foods. At last China's preserved ginger root was brought to England by travelers who told of its wonderful medicinal properties. At first only royalty was able to secure it, but Queen Elizabeth, who seems to have been a housewife sort of a maiden after all, had it made into small cakes to be eaten when her household had dined on too rich foods.

Whether the sweets were so tempting or living so rich we can not tell, but the court ladies and lords kept up such a constant demand for the tarts that a special baker was appointed to make "Queen's Ginger Cakes."

As the pleasant remedy was found to be as soothing to the digestions of everyday folks it was soon England's most popular cake. There is probably small resemblance in our manifold ginger cakes to those of Merry Old England, but even today there is no cake that is better liked.

Honey Ginger Cakes.

Stir one egg with a cup of light brown sugar and one cup of shortening until it is creamy. Mix a level tablespoon of soda with one-half a cup of New Orleans molasses and add enough hot water to fill the cup; stir this and add to the other ingredients with a cup of honey. If honey is not strained, heat it until the comb is melted. Beat this very well, then sift three cups of flour with one tablespoon of ginger and stir it in. Add enough more flour to make a dough that can be rolled out. These cakes are very rich and they improve with age. If this recipe is doubled you will have a supply of excellent tea cookies for some time to come. Keep in a covered stone jar. Nuts may be added if liked.

Ginger Cakes.

In some houses snaps are liked better than bread mixtures; they, too, are made in quantity.

Mix five cups of light brown sugar, one tablespoon of ginger, one tablespoon of mixed spices, one teaspoon salt, one level tablespoon of soda and eight cups of flour, together by sifting. To this add one pint of shortening or butter and a pint and a half of New Orleans molasses. This must stand several hours after it is well mixed. Bake on oiled or buttered paper and drop the mixture on by teaspoonfuls. The snaps like to spread out thin while baking and must have plenty of room between one another; if they run together it is hard to free them from the paper.

Bake in moderate oven. They are very crisp when fresh, but soften up after a day or two.

LOW RAILROAD FARE TO LOUISVILLE.

Low railroad rates are offered to Louisville, on sale next Thursday, May 27, on account of the annual convention of the Kentucky League of Building and Loan Associations, and because of its discussions this year will be of interest to bankers, large land owners and others interested in economic problems now confronting Kentucky.

The important subject of "Farm Loans," lack of which have retarded development in Kentucky, will be closely analyzed and efforts will be made to establish in every county in the state at least one building and loan association and the advantages of such institutions will be demonstrated at the Louisville convention.

DO IT NOW

Maysville People Should Not Wait Until It Is Too Late.

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due largely to the fact that the little kidney troubles are usually neglected until they become serious. The slight symptoms often give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer may slip gradually into some serious form of kidney complaint.

If you suffer from backache, headaches, dizzy spells; if the kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. Help the kidneys at once.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney disorders—they act where others fail. Over one hundred thousand people have recommended them. Here's a case at home:

Mrs. S. Neal, 497 W. Second St., Maysville, Ky., says: "One of my family had a great deal of trouble from his back and kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills made him better and he always praises them."

Mrs. Neal is only one of many Maysville people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Neal recommends—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. THE BED ROOM

To often the bed room is considered as just a place to sleep; a part of the house that does not require any special attention as to lighting because it is seen only by members of the family.

Yet correct lighting arrangement—the installation of harmonious chandeliers, in a manner to give effective illumination—will make this one of the most used rooms of the whole house—a cozy home in itself.

By the use of a simple, but graceful chandelier in the center of the room, and two or more wall brackets of harmonious design, the bedroom is fitted to serve as a study or sewing room.

Then, too, a wall bracket placed at each side of the dresser adds much to the ease and pleasure of dressing. Only when she has a perfect light by which to make her toilet can Milady be absolutely certain that every little detail is as it should be.

MOTOR CAR GREATEST AID TO PROGRESSIVE FARMER.

The motor car has furnished a welcome relief from the monotony of life which was long the lot of the average farmer. Although usually well-to-do, the farmer found that his necessary isolation kept him from enjoying the full benefits of frequent association with his neighbors and friends. Easy means of communication were lacking. It is only within recent years that any progress has been made in this direction.

It is the big need for relaxation and pleasure that the automobile has filled for the farmer. This point is made plain by one of the leading auto manufacturers in the United States, who says:

"The farmer does not have to stay at home if he has a car. He does not feel himself rooted to the soil. His wife and children will be happier and more contented. An automobile brings freedom—freedom from isolation, freedom from loneliness, freedom from the limitations of time and distance. "To the farmer, a car is far more than mere luxury. It is a vital necessity to him and his family. It offers a welcome relief. It makes him a better worker by giving him recreation and pleasure he could not otherwise have. Its broadening mental effect is one of its greatest benefits to him. "Once the farmer has an automobile he soon finds himself looking forward to summer evening rides with his family with the cool breeze blowing away the fever heat of the day's work in the fields. He finds himself able to go on pleasure trips, to picnics and so on, with his wife and children, which hitherto he was unable to enjoy because of the distance to be covered in the time at his disposal. Many a man has reported that he doesn't feel the hard work of harvest time as much as he did before his car gave him the needed relaxation.

"A man can't get the same rest and relaxation out of a horse. In the first place, there is no relief for a farmer in driving a horse. In the second place, the chances are he is sorry for the brute. If man has any sympathy and feeling for animals, he knows that they must have rest over night and on Sundays. A horse is too slow and the distance he can cover is too small for any one really to get any great amount of recreation from an evening's drive. At the same time, an automobile costs money only when in actual use, unlike the horse, which is a constant expense.

"In winter instead of hugging the fire, trying to keep warm, and dreading the next trip he will have to make to town, the farmer can go and come with comfort and just as often as he pleases.

"The automobile also facilitates communication and intercourse, and because it does, it is one of the foremost influences in fostering a strong sense of good fellowship and fraternal co-operation among farmers.

"When the church, the school and the grange flourish, the opportunities for recreation and social betterment are naturally multiplied. In enabling the farmer to make the most of these institutions, the automobile helps to support and develop them and also renders its owner one more valuable service.

"This influence of the automobile is only natural. When a man shuts himself off from his neighbors and sees very little of them, he soon loses interest in what they are doing. He gets so that he cares very little about anything but what is taking place on his own little sphere. He builds about himself, as it were, a Chinese wall of indifference.

"Another argument for the car on the farm lies in the fact that while in the city the working unit is generally only the head of the family, on the farm all hands turn in and help. There is work for young and old. And while the farmer does his full share, he has certain advantages, as compared with his faithful helpmate, who is not only tied down to the house, but also probably has the cares of a family of little ones.

"Progressive farmers today appreciate that the women-folk deserve a better, brighter life. And nothing has made the life of farm women brighter and broader than the automobile. An hour's ride—a visit with laughter, song and gaiety, do more to erase the marks of care and preserve the roses of youth than barrels of pills.

"And, of course, if an automobile in the family proves beneficial to a man and his wife, it can not help making a big difference in the upbringing of the children. A car provides just the safety valve needed to let out the excess energies and spirits of the growing boys and girls on the farm. It gives the farmer city advantages without city drawbacks."

may eventually give to women rights to which they are entitled, but good health, which is the birthright of every American woman, must be hers before she can fully enjoy the privileges which woman's suffrage will bring. Women who suffer from those dreadful pains, backache, headaches, irritability, nervousness and depression, symptoms of organic trouble, should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, to restore them to a normal healthy condition, as it has thousands of other American women.

Women outvoted the men at a recent election held in Texas City, Tex., thereby passing a law which prohibits herds of livestock from traversing the streets.

The municipal authorities in Glasgow, Scotland, are now training women to be machinists, owing to the shortage in these mechanics, due to the war.

GREAT RUSSIANS THE FIRST OF SLAVONIC PEOPLES.

Washington, May 25.—The Great Russians are the first of Slavonic peoples, and the history of their rise is the history of the growth of the mighty Slavonic Empire. There are Little Russians, White Russians, Red Russians, Cossacks and scores of widely varying peoples within the confines of the Muscovite realm, but Great Russia is the cradle of real Russians and the source of Russian progress and greatness. Of this kenneled people of the vast modern nation, a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society, at Washington, says:

"Before all other Slavonic peoples, those of Great Russia have succeeded in building the most powerful, the most enduring and the most promising of empires. Great Russia comprehends that part of the empire which is bounded by the Polar Seas upon the north, by the Ural mountains upon the east, Novgorod and Kursk upon the south, and the Polish and Baltic provinces upon the west. Within these confines has grown up the power that, today, has brought into being the mightiest of all empires welded behind one unbroken border.

"The nucleus of Great Russia included a narrower region, with Kursk, Smolensk, Novgorod, Volodga, Nijni Novgorod and Tambov as its boundaries. Moscow is the heart of this region, the inspiration in the development of the dominant Russian. From this central region, growing outwards, the Russian people have developed slowly, but steadily, through centuries; much as in the case of the individual of the north and in strong contra-distinction to the nations of the south, they have come to the prime late. Today Russia has reached a majority that is filled with unbounded promise.

"The Great Russian has a touch of Finnish and of Tartar blood, the one making him a little more phlegmatic, a little tougher than his other Slavonic brothers, and the other giving him a quality of thrift, making him a better housekeeper, than is the free-handed Pole, Little Russian and Serbian. The Finns at one time lived all along the Volga valley, while the Tartars several times inundated Muscovy during Russian infancy.

"Great Russian numbers about one-third of the Empire's people. With the exception of Petrograd and Odessa, it includes the more important, more progressive cities of Russia, and all of the cities whose histories are Russian history, such as Rostov the Great, Tver, Moscow, Yaroslavl, Vladimir and Tula. Throughout this land long and bitter winters reign, forcing the people to remain inactive several months each year. During these cold months, the Russian peasant and his family spend the time huddled under the great stoves, or, in very cold weather, resting on top of them.

"The peasant home in Great Russia consists of only one room, fifteen feet square, built with bunks around its walls, with, perhaps, a small loft overhead and a shallow cellar storeroom. The Great Russian village is generally two long lines of these simple homes facing each other across a broad street. Hermetically sealed against the stinging winter weather, the Russian home in winter tends to make its dwellers stogy, for fresh air only finds admission through the opening and closing of the door.

"The life of the Great Russian peasant is something far more simple than that of the poorest of America's farmers. Sour cabbage, black bread and cucumbers are the staples of his table. Sour cabbage, put up in casks, slightly salted and fermented, is the first thought of the hungry Great Russian peasant. This sour cabbage, cooked in soup, with black bread, forms many and many a meal of the Russian family. Meat, except during the harvest festivals, is rare at the moujik's table. Despite simple fare, he, however, is a remarkable worker, and also a man of splendid physique.

"A man, woman and a horse form a Great Russian household. The peasants marry young. Marriages are simple ceremonies. The Great Russian has a touch of Finnish and of Tartar blood, the one making him a little more phlegmatic, a little tougher than his other Slavonic brothers, and the other giving him a quality of thrift, making him a better housekeeper, than is the free-handed Pole, Little Russian and Serbian. The Finns at one time lived all along the Volga valley, while the Tartars several times inundated Muscovy during Russian infancy.

feasts, on the other hand, last several days, and, in the years before the war, they were enlivened with quantities of vodka. Instead of rice, the Russian showers the bride and bridegroom with hops. By the rules of the Orthodox church, a man may marry three times, but no more, and a widow may make a second venture. There are few beautiful peasant girls in Great Russia. Good looks in a woman there are more a matter of deep chests, muscular arms and powerful shoulders than one of beauty of face."

ENGLAND ATTEMPTS

To Embarrass United States and Trade Negotiations Are Off.

Washington, May 24.—The State Department announced today that "because of differences," negotiations between the trade advisers of the department and Sir Richard Crawford, commercial adviser of the British embassy, on the subject of facilitating the movement of American cargoes, have been broken off for the present.

Following, as it does, the action of Secretary Bryan in denying that the informal tax of the trade advisers of the State Department regarding cotton cargoes were to be considered as binding on this government as the British government maintained, the announcement today was considered of great significance.

It means that the United States reaffirms an implied refusal to be put in a position which might be interpreted as approval of Great Britain's orders in council, under

A CONFESSION

Hopes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

Hines, Ala.—"I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Mae Reid, of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good."

Before I commenced using Cardui, I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously.

Since taking Cardui, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight.

If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer.

For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year.

Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and helps build the weakened organs back to health and strength.

Cardui has helped others, and will help you, too. Get a bottle today. You won't regret it. Your druggist sells it.

A Nurse says:

"I have been a trained nurse for some fifteen years, and like many nurses, drank strong coffee. About two years ago I had to call a halt. I missed my coffee until some one recommended Postum, which I have used ever since, recommending it to many of my patients."

A Teacher says:

"I have been a coffee drinker ever since I can remember. I have been teaching school for sixteen years, and became more and more nervous. I could not sleep. After reading some of your literature I decided to try Postum. I have been using it about thirty days; my nerves have improved; I have no headache; sleep peacefully, and am able to do my school work better."

A Doctor says:

"I often find it necessary to prohibit the use of coffee for my patients, and have advised the use of Postum with good results to the nervous system and digestive apparatus."

The Pastime was packed Monday evening with the sporting element of Maysville, all eager to see the pictures of the heavyweight championship bout between Jess Willard and Jack Johnson. The pictures were good and were ably explained by Manager Ward. Several other reels of good pictures were also shown.

The Gem played to good crowds, with a good bill Monday evening, but the main attraction at that playhouse was the superb music rendered by the old Gem orchestra. Their playing brought forth much applause and every one was well pleased with their first appearance since their return. The personnel of the orchestra is Prof. Weidmeyer, saxophone; Prof. Hanke, drums, and Prof. Hubbard, piano.

The Washington Opera House had the best bill of vaudeville ever presented this season by that house. The black face work of Oliver was good, so was the singing of Weber, but the feature of the evening was the team of Gourley and Keenan. This couple are about the best team that have played here this season. Their character song, "My Chinatown," is as good as one wants to see. "The Exploits of Elaine" was also on the program and received its share of the applause.
